Silver sings
such sweet songs,
a whisper of moonlight

Red might shout
but what red's really about
is something akin
to passion

Yellow unfolds
in morning,
leaning into
the blue of sky,
a reminder of why
we find joy in every small moment

April

Green sleeps
unbidden,
a hidden seed
in the weeds
waiting for a moment
to dance

Pink is punk,
the unexpected
beautiful shout
of a passionate
embrace

Blue, like strings
on a beat-up guitar;
strummed chords
that find you,
wherever you are

Orange burns
from its center, first,
and then extends itself
outwards

Purple hides and hints
at transformation,
a small creation of
wonder
and love

Brown – fingers dirty
from the digging;
this Earth is always
singing
something
unexpected

November

Gray days,
but not always gloom;
there's room for every
emotion,
like an island
on the ocean
